

Top Ten Signs Your Servers Are Out of Control

We have to admit that this item is more an attempt at some light humor, but there is a core of truth that most of us will recognize instantly. Here goes:

1. You habitually spend your evenings or weekends adding more disks to your servers.
2. Your users have turned the S drive into an MP3 juke box.
3. You have 12 copies of Doom! on the network.
4. You spend two days cleaning up the mess from the LoveBug virus.
5. You spend four hours a week manually deleting large, non-work related files off the server.
6. You get dirty looks on the elevator after personally emailing your disk space hogs to clean up their home directories.
7. Your servers contain the Budweiser ad, the Kenneth Star papers, and the Pamela Lee video.
8. Your backup cycles take 26 hours to complete.
9. Bob has 200MB in his home directory, and he left the company 2 years ago.
10. The dancing baby and frog in blender cartoons take up the same amount of space as your mission critical data.

If any of these symptoms sound familiar, RUN, -- don't walk -- to your nearest web browser and download the free eval of StorageCeNTral, the industry standard real-time quota software with the only patented real-time quota filter driver. Microsoft selected StorageCeNTral to take control of its NT/2000 storage space at corporate headquarters in Redmond, WA. And you can too.
